A new AI system built on the Frostbite 3 engine has also been implemented, aiming to bring a more realistic unpredictability and variety to the on-field action. New modes have also been added, including 2 vs. 2 Friendlies and Hyper Off-Peak, Ultimate Team, a new Skirmish mode, and all-new skills using the Frostbite 3 engine. Team of the Year (TOTY) for FIFA 16 has been added, where fans can share their team of the year on FIFA.com and Facebook. There are really no words. How on earth did we get from the days when you could only buy a beer at a governmentally-sanctioned establishment or across the table from your doctor to an environment where the sale of booze is as common as burgers and home-brewed hops? I had my fill of the 20th century's end-of-days, but this? This is the true apocalypse. That, dear reader, is the simply mind-boggling number of dollar bills changing hands at the Somerville farmers market in the past two days, from 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. It was a combination of $30/lb. of local beef and $1/lb. of whole fresh eggs. One $10/oz. bottle of the previous year's Black Beards. A refreshing, local, seasonal, locally-sourced, healthful, chef-approved beer from the guys at Crush Cellars. It was a perfect Saturday morning. I didn't have to give my farmer's market stash to the police as I'm an NJ resident, but I asked if I could pay with large bills, and they obliged. Just the sight of those suckers would make me ill with thirst if I were the type of wussy to drink beer in the first place. $50. $70. $100. $200. $300. It didn't stop there. By the end of the weekend, the cops had made over $1,100 from me. The problem isn't so much that folks are selling out of their wares in Somerville, which is a great thing, and the problem isn't so much that they're getting into the human economic concept of a black market, but that the Somerville police are preemptively
